2. The Case for Change

For information on the job roles to be supported through the proposed qualifications updates, enrolments data, completion rates, and the number of RTOs delivering these qualifications please see Attachment B.

2.1 Rationale for change

This Case for Change is based on the Certificate III and Certificate IV in Correctional Practice requiring a review to ensure the workforce has the skills to conduct their duties safely and effectively and that the training products continue to align with current job roles and work practices.

Both qualifications have had various units and specialisation streams reviewed and updated over the past 5 years, however there are a significant number of units (38 in total) that have not been reviewed since 2015 and require updating.

There is an increasing gap between the roles and skills requirements of correctional officers working in a custodial facility setting, within the courts, or in the transportation/escort of offenders.

As part of the review of the Certificate III, the IRC is proposing to review the current specialisation streams and to look at including a new stream to address the need for courts and transportation/escort roles. This review may also include the development of 1-2 new units to address skills gaps if required.

This Case for Change also covers the ever increasing need to protect the mental health and wellbeing of those working in the Correctional Services industry. Correctional officers deal with a range of conditions every day that place them in stressful situations. They require the skills and knowledge to identify and deal with such pressures before they become a mental health issue. Whilst there are several non-accredited programs and training that can, and are being undertaken, a consistent national approach is required to better protect the mental health and wellbeing of those working in the industry.

The IRC have acknowledged that this is a critical area and are proposing the development of a Resilience or Mental Health Skill Set. It is anticipated that there are existing units from other Training Packages that can be imported to form the Skill Set and the imported units can also look to be added to the general electives of the Certificate III and Certificate IV in Correctional Practice.

If this review is not completed, the Certificate III and Certificate IV qualifications will not be aligned with the skills requirements of current and future job roles and limit the development of correctional services officers.

2.2 Evidence for change

During a previous project TAC meeting in 2020, it was raised by several SME's that there is an ever-increasing gap between the roles of a custodial officer in a courts or transportation/escort environment and that of an officer in a full custodial role within a prison.

The IRC agreed with this observation and conducted additional industry research, held discussions with corrections stakeholders within their networks and conducted an industry consultation webinar to validate this information. The IRC determined there is a need to add an additional specialisation stream to the Certificate III to address this gap in changing job roles and ensure the qualification remains fit for purpose.

The Certificate III and Certificate IV in Correctional Practice over the last four years (2015 to 2019) averaged 5,600 and 1,260 annual enrolments respectively. However, the qualifications contain 38 units that have not been reviewed in over 6 years. It is imperative that these units are reviewed to ensure the workforce has the skills to conduct their duties safely and effectively and that the training products continue to align with current and future job roles and the use of current technology.

2.3 Consideration of existing products

Existing units of competency will be reviewed but there are no existing units available in any other Training Package that address the skills required for correctional services officers working in a courts or transportation/escort environment, and therefore the development of two new units is required.

The existing Training Package products for these qualifications are contained in the CSC Correctional Services Training Package and existing units are proposed to be updated to incorporate changing job roles, updated procedures and relevant industry changes.

2.4 Approach to streamlining and rationalisation of the training products being reviewed

Given the specialised nature of the corrections industry, the industry requires the qualifications to be specific to their occupational needs. Therefore, this project will not streamline multiple qualifications but will rationalise CSC superfluous units of competency, which will be deleted where possible during the review.

With regards to the development of the new Resilience or Mental Health Skill Set, the IRC acknowledges that there are existing units from other Training Packages that can be imported to form the Skill Set, thus avoiding unit duplication.

3. Stakeholder consultation

3.1 Stakeholder consultation undertaken in the development of Case for Change

For a full list of industry-specific stakeholders that actively participated in the stakeholder consultation process undertaken to develop the Case for Change, please see Attachment C.

Development of the Case for Change involved consultation with stakeholders via the following communication mechanisms:

- Stakeholder webinar
- Face to Face meetings (Virtual)
- AIS Website
- Stakeholder networks
- Teleconferences
- Emails

Correctional services operated 115 custodial facilities nationally as of 30 June 2020, comprising 88 government and 10 privately operated prisons operating in rural, regional and remote locations across all states and territories in Australia. In addition to the facilities themselves, there is community corrections, probation and parole district offices and a range of related services including home detention, custodial escorts and court security also represented nationally.

The IRC held discussions with corrections stakeholders within their networks and conducted an industry consultation webinar. Notification of the opportunity to provide feedback through the CSC webinar, and the Engagement Hub, was provided to over 395 CSC sector stakeholder subscribers including industry representatives from across the states/territories in rural, regional and remote areas.

3.2 Evidence of Industry Support

For a list of the issues raised by stakeholders during consultation and the IRC's response to these, please see Attachment D.

Stakeholders provided feedback and support for the proposed projects during the webinar (conducted on April 1) and via the discussion starter survey, which was available for completion on the AIS Engagement Hub from April 1 to 15 April.

The proposed review of the CSC qualifications and development of the Resilience/Mental health skill set is supported by the corrections industry and has been approved by the Corrections IRC.

Please see attachment D

3.3 Proposed stakeholder consultation strategy for project

Note: For a full list of industry-specific stakeholders who are planned to be contacted to participate in the stakeholder consultation process undertaken for this project, please see Attachment E.

Key Industry stakeholders have been identified in consultation with peak bodies, associations, past and present TAC members and the Corrections IRC.

AIS, on behalf of the Corrections IRC, will promote the opportunity to contribute through stakeholder webinars, the AIS website and engagement hub, EDM's, AIS newsletter and public notifications. Stakeholders will also be notified of key milestones throughout the life of the project, including requests for feedback on draft materials.

Stakeholder engagement and consultation will occur over the life of the project via a combination of the following methods:

- Direct engagement: Face to face consultations, Site visits, Phone, emails, video/teleconferencing meetings
- Industry forums and conferences
- Webinars
- Online feedback mechanisms
- STA direct engagement

Given the size of Australia and all stakeholders are not centrally located in major cities, a range of consultation strategies will be used so stakeholders in rural, regional and remote areas, and in smaller jurisdictions have multiple avenues to provide feedback.

This includes but is not limited to, online/video consultation, email correspondence and promotional activity via targeted communications including social media. A recently developed Engagement hub on the AIS website provides a one stop portal for information about how all stakeholders can participate and inform Training Package development work.

4. Licencing or regulatory linkages

There are no licencing requirements contained in the qualifications or units proposed for review.

5. Project implementation

5.1 Prioritisation category

This Case for Change proposes that this review be progressed as a routine project.

In accordance with the AISC Training Package Prioritisation Report and to coordinate the release of updated products, the Public Safety IRC recommends a routine review.

5.2 Project milestones

- AISC project approval – July 2021
- Draft 1 consultation – February 2022
- Stakeholder validation – April 2022
- Quality Assurance – May /June 2022
- Final consultation with states and territories – July 2022
- CfE submitted for approval – 30 July 2022.

5.3 Delivery or implementation issues

As both qualifications proposed for review received Code Changes in 2019 and 2020, the IRC is requesting an extension to the transition period from one to two years to minimise the disruption to RTOs.

6. Implementing the Skills Minister’s Priority reforms for Training Packages (2015 and October 2020)

The project submission will support industry’s expectations for training delivery and provide a revised Companion Volume Implementation Guide (CVIG) to support delivery of the new products.

The qualifications and units of competency will be reviewed and developed to ensure they are applicable to roles related to the duties of correctional services officers in Australia. This review and development will also enable correctional services officers to move between States and Territories. Pathway information is provided in the CVIG.

The qualifications and associated units of competency are only used in correctional services contexts. The qualifications enable workforce mobility between state and commonwealth correctional services sectors.

One Resilience/ Mental Health Skill Set is proposed for development. It is anticipated that there are existing units from other Training Packages that can be imported to form the Skill Set.

This Case for Change was agreed to by the Corrections IRC

Employers (Non-IRC)	Why the need now for a specific stream to look at corrections officers in a courts environment?	It's been identified that there is often some gap training required depending on where a person has worked in the past and what elective units a person has completed as part of their qualification. The experience, situation, exposure or environment the individual has worked in may not be the same and this needs to be considered. While the qualification issued is the same eg Cert III, the way the Certificate III is structured at the moment, it can allow for a trainee to complete a Cert III and not necessarily be ready to work in a prison if they've only completed elective units related to courts or escort/transport. 	In Victoria external prisoner escorts and court duties are undertaken by a relatively minor cohort of staff when compared to the overall number that complete traditional prison duties inside a facility. Without seeing the performance criteria it's difficult to judge but I would suspect embedding these two proposed units into a traditional Cert III workbook would make it difficult for the majority of ordinary staff working inside prisons to complete the required duties to satisfy the performance & assessment criteria. This new specialisation stream can be chosen if this is the candidates primary job role, the same way they can currently choose their electives from the other specialisation streams or from the general elective bank. complete the traditional version of the Cert III and if they are assigned court/escort duties, be offered the relevant individual unit.

State and Territory Training Authorities (STAs)	Will the new units being developed be housed in the elective bank of the two qualifications, Certificate III in Correctional Practice and Certificate IV in Correctional Practice?	This will be up to the TACs to decide, however early discussions with IRC members indicate that the job roles are more closely aligned with the Cert III.
	In addition to the new units being proposed there are two units being reviewed – CSCTRA001 and CSCTRA004. Will these be the units form part of the transportation/escort role? Where will courts be covered in this new stream?	Until the TAC/s are formed and SMEs consulted, we’re uncertain of the new structure and which units will be included to form the specialisation stream. It may be deemed necessary to include 2 new streams to cover both courts and transportation/escort.
	It is noted that two other qualifications CSC20115Y Certificate II in Justice Services and CSC30219Y Certificate III in Immigration Detention Operations will be impacted by unit changes. Will the equivalency status be impacted for these qualifications noting that CSC20115 was last updated in February 2020 and was equivalent while CSC30219 was update in Jan 2021 and was not equivalent?	CSC20115 was updated with a second release in Feb 2020 and was therefore equivalent to release 1 (as well as being deemed equivalent to its predecessor CSC20112). It is uncertain to say if the qualification will remain equivalent until the affected units are reviewed in full, however it is anticipated that it will likely remain equivalent. CSC30219 was updated with a second release in 2019 and was therefore equivalent to release 1. The mapping refers to it being a new qualification (which it was in release 1) and it states that there is no equivalent qualification (which there isn’t/wasn’t as it was a new qual in release 1). It is uncertain to say if the qualification will remain equivalent until the affected units are reviewed in full, however it is anticipated that it will likely remain equivalent.
	There are already a range of skill sets covering mental health that could be used.	Initial research indicated that there wasn’t anything already available that suited the specific needs of correctional officers. However, this will be explored further over the coming months and if it’s deemed that there is already something available for correctional officers, the Skill Set development will not go ahead.

Anonymous Webinar Participant	In reference to the resilience/mental health skill set do you know what unit or units you're looking to include? And why isn't consideration being given to the development of new units specific to Corrections officers?	A small amount of research has been done to look at units from other Training Packages and the IRC feels at this stage that there is sufficient content out there already that can be contextualised to suit the Corrections Industry. Some units have been potentially flagged for consideration from the HLT, BSB, PUA and CUA Training packages, but nothing has been determined yet, and that will be up to the TAC to decide and the IRC to approve once the project commences.
